Hi Carrie - Unfortunately the database only allows for one contractor level user at this time. However, I will definitely put that functionality on our wishlist if we are able to make enhancements at a later date. For now, she will just have to log in under your account to see everything.

Emily,

Quick question...prior to fully understanding how the database worked, I requested an account for Marsha, at the employee level, which means she can't see anything for any of our subs/clients. It is possible for you to go ahead and request an account for her at the same level as me so she can see everything from her log in that I can see?
